- 1) Total Price of Pre-Auction Consultancy Services (Chapter 2.2.1 of Technical specifications), Auction rules (Chapter 2.2.2) and Auction Software (Chapter 2.2.3 of Technical specifications), assuming

Number of points for this criterion is calculated (in accordance with the formula below) as ratio between the lowest price Offered and evaluated offered price. The result will be multiplied with 40 and will be rounded to one decimal place. The Tenderer that Offers the lowest price gets 40 points.

$$P = (P_L/P_X) \times 40$$

P = Number of points for criteria »Price Offered«

P_L = Lowest price Offered (compared with all Tenderers whose bids are evaluated)

P_X = Price that is being evaluated

P_{Fix} = Total fixed price Offered

P_{AP} = Auction daily rate

P_{CH} = Consultancy hour rate

The Price evaluated is calculated as sum of Offered fixed price, 15 auction daily rates and 40 Consultancy hour rates.

$$P_X = P_{Fix} + 15 \times P_{AP} + 40 \times P_{CH}$$

2. SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS

2.1. CONSULTANCY SERVICES

This section details the specific requirements of the Invitation to Tender in the substance. The requirements described in this section are without prejudice to mandatory requirements set out in other sections of the Contract Documents.

2.2. REQUIREMENTS

By issuing the Invitation to Tender, AKOS is seeking to procure independent, expert Consultancy Services, for and on behalf of AKOS, in relation to the upcoming multiband CCA auction:

2.2.1. Pre-Auction Consultancy Services (Preparation of the frequency auction)

1. AKOS requests support in finalization of the Information Memorandum prepared by AKOS, which will - amongst other topics - include a full description of the auction objects and procedural aspects of the auction, auction rules and technical requirements. This Information Memorandum will be consulted with the interested public to make sure that all relevant contributions to AKOS's plans can be incorporated in the Tender Documentation.
2. The successful tenderer/consultant shall provide consultation support to AKOS with regard to the results of the public consultation of the Information Memorandum.
3. The successful tenderer/consultant will customize/develop the auction software needed for the auction process. This phase of the project will consist of the customization/development of computer software and the specification of any necessary computer hardware or other equipment for the implementation and verification of the auction, together with documentation and necessary instructions and assistance of use of this software.
4. The auction software should have the functionality to generate an accurate full audit trail report that is suitable for publication by AKOS and would be independently verifiable. While AKOS would not require the intellectual property of such computer software to be assigned to it outright, it will require the Consultant to provide the software (and related licenses to use the software) to AKOS and appropriate third parties (the latter including prospective bidder/s and any party/s engaged by AKOS to verify the results of the auction outcome);
5. The auction software should be designed to providing overall information security, including, but not limited, to the process of bidder authentication, data security, fraud protection, backup/retrieve procedures etc.
6. The tenderer/consultant shall provide an auction logistics plan and detailed time schedule which should:
 - ensure that all computer software and hardware to be used in auction implementation is suitable and secure in terms of its reliability, the physical robustness of the Information Technology (IT) system, its redundancy and back-up systems;
 - ensure that the method chosen for bidders to communicate bids is secure, efficient and is not subject to tampering or other interference;

- seek to ensure that the potential for anti-competitive behaviour (such as, but not limited to, collusion and gaming) is - as far as possible - excluded before and during the auction; and
 - ensure that the computer software to be used in the auction implementation allows to generate an accurate audit process and that such data reports, if required by AKOS, is suitable for publication;
7. The successful tenderer/consultant shall provide the validation of the software implementation of auction algorithms, auction rules and other computer software.
 8. The successful tenderer/consultant shall organize workshops on the essentials of the auction design separate for AKOS staff and for bidders.
 9. The successful tenderer/consultant shall organize one live mock auction separate for AKOS staff and for each prospective bidder.
 10. The successful tenderer/consultant shall provide assistance to AKOS throughout the auction implementation process (including but not limited to addressing any queries raised in relation to the implementation of the auction software system).

2.2.2. Auction rules

1. For Information Memorandum and later for Tender Documentation it is necessary to specify detailed auction rules for which the auction software has to be adapted.

2.2.3. Auction software

1. The auction software must be capable of submitting and dealing with bids to provide an outcome of the CCA auction.
2. The successful tenderer/consultant shall be responsible for providing all of the necessary auction implementation algorithms, computer software and hardware, intellectual property licenses and any other material and equipment required for it to meet the requirements specified in this tender.
3. The successful tenderer/consultant shall provide a detailed security plan as well as a detailed plan how to avoid violations of auction rules and unfair competition.
4. It is important to note that AKOS does not intend to run auction server software on its own IT infrastructure.

2.2.3.1. General description of the auction software

1. As a minimum, the software solution shall include hosting, operation, support, availability, security facilities (encryption, backup, access control, logging, etc.) as well as uptime. In case fault repair is needed during an auction in progress, it must be possible to restart the auction process as soon as fault free continuation is proven. The auction process shall continue from the time when the last completed auction round took place.
2. The auction software shall store data exchanged throughout the auction process between bidders, the auction system and AKOS actions in a database so as to enable detailed reviewing after completion of the auction process. Data shall be stored in a safe manner. The tenderer shall deliver a copy of the original database to AKOS.

3. In addition, the auction software must be capable of distributing a common indication of time that may be accessed by AKOS and all bidders and is synchronized with each bidding round.
4. Since the CCA auction is planned to be used, the tool must ensure that the following is available to AKOS after each auction round: The number of active bids, the size and placing of bids, and the names of the parties submitting the bids. It must also be possible to follow the bids received, both as a percentage increase and as a bid sum increase. The auction software must display the running auction process graphically. When the auction has been completed, the name of the winning bidders and the amount of the winning bids must be communicated electronically AKOS. It is important that integrity in relation to all parties involved be ensured from the start to the end. Integrity implies security that a message in its present form is identical to the content it had at the time of origination.
5. A web-based interface must be established for the information to be provided to bidders. The site shall contain the information that AKOS decides to publish. Such information might be excess demand, a currently updated list of the highest bids and the number of active bids. AKOS logo must be clearly displayed on the site.
6. As part of the tender, the successful tenderer/consultant shall prepare a general description of the auction software.
7. The software must be Web based, and the successful tenderer/consultant shall provide a description of how bidders get access to the auction software, including a description of security aspects of this connection. That the auction software must be Web based means that the bidders can use the software as an Internet application reserved for registered bidders with special access to the software. The auction software must be easily accessible to the bidders.
8. The auction software must be able to function on a standard platform and shall be implemented on the IT infrastructure of the consultant. As a consequence, there must be no requirement to install major software applications, neither at AKOS nor at bidders. The implementation must allow AKOS to connect from at least three different terminals (auctioneer interface and auction observer interfaces). It is however only a requirement to support one active connection (auctioneer interface) from one of the terminals at each instance in time. For redundancy purposes it must be possible to switch from observer interface to auctioneer interface on any observer terminal.

- Bidder interface - There must be a secure communication interface to all bidders, the distributed information shall be sent simultaneously to all bidders. It must be possible to run the bidder interface on industry standard personal computer hardware and operating systems and/or standard web-browsers. It must be possible for the bidders to use the bidder interface over a standard internet connection over the public Internet. The successful tenderer/consultant must provide the bidders with the result of each auction round as a text file or another commonly used downloadable data format. The purpose of this is to allow bidders to post-process and analyze the auction data between each round.

2.2.3.3. Authentication and security

1. It is important that the auction software can ensure correct identification of AKOS and the bidders (authenticity) and verify the correctness of information transmitted (integrity over the public internet).
2. The authentication solution must allow the bidder to connect from at least two different terminals. It is however only required to support one active connection from one of the terminals at each instance in time.
3. A strong encryption solution for protecting the secrecy of the bid over the public Internet must be supported.
4. The successful tenderer/consultant must describe in his tender the authentication and security solution, to substantiate the fulfillment of the requirements detailed above.

1. The successful tenderer/consultant must provide an implementation of the auction system with functional redundancy. In the case of an infrastructure or software failure that falls within the successful tenderer's responsibility, it must be possible to reset the system to the system state after the last completed auction round. It must be possible for the auction process to restart from the point of the last completed auction round in reasonable time, after clarification of the reason for the incurred failure.
2. The successful tenderer/consultant must describe the IT infrastructure solution chosen to achieve the redundancy and restart requirements in the tender, to substantiate the fulfillment of the requirements detailed above.
3. Connections over the public Internet to the bidders that are outside the control of the successful tenderer/consultant are not within the scope of the reliability requirements. Also, any bidders' IT infrastructure problems are not within the scope of the reliability requirements, with the exception of reliability problems that can be traced back to the bidder interface functionality that is provided by the Consultant.

2.2.3.5. Traceability of auction process

1. The successful tenderer/consultant must store interactions during the auction process between the bidders, the system and the auctioneer in a database so that a complete, detailed audit trail can be ensured after the end of auction process. This information must be handed over to AKOS and must be securely stored by the Consultant.

 - The user identity, content and timestamp of all information that is sent from the bidders' interface.
 - The user identity, content and timestamp of all information that is received by the system from the bidders.
 - The user identity, content and timestamp of all information that is sent to the bidders' interface
 - The user identity, content and timestamp of all information that is entered into the system by the auctioneer.
